Warranted to be the most powerful as well as

Economical Steam Engine

EVER OFFERED IN THIS MARKET.

We desire to call the attention of

OIL OPERATORS

To this new and improved

STEAM ENGINE,

Believing that we are prepared to offer them what they have long felt the need of,

A Reliable & Economical Engine.

We claim for it superiority in its proportions, for compactness, strength, durability, and the arrangement of its parts, by which accessibility for repairs is obtained; and having reduced the friction of the moving parts to a minimum as compared with all other Steam Engines in use. We have spared no expense in our endeavors to produce a superior Engine, and have adopted the many improvements calculated to economize in the use of steam.

Our cylinders are covered with felting and this with wood, which prevents condensation of steam.

We use the most approved Cut-off Governor. The shaft bearings are heavily lined with brass, and so arranged as to compensate for three or four years' wear. The arrangements of our

HEATER

Is such that we feel justified in guaranteeing by its use to place water in the boiler, at 200 deg. Fahrenheit, which is within 12 deg. of steam

The Force Pump

Is simple and strong, with Brass Valves and Seats, has a large chamber, giving a Sure Vacuum, and Always Works.

In fact no part of the Engine, no matter of how little consequence, has been neglected, and the result is, we are prepared to offer a superior Engine, and at rea cs.

The Reality of Dreams.

Sancho Panza was a philosopher in pronouncing a blessing on the man that invented sleep. He, the miserable follower of a beggarly master, could, by sleep, exchange the labors and exactions of his position which appropriated his waking hours, for the glorious realities and conscious repose he found in dreamland. Thousands join with him in benedictions on the mythical benefactor of the race. Sleep and night are the poor man's luxury and holiday. Job's beautifully poetical description of the grave is peculiarly applicable to sleep:

> Where the wicked cease from troubling
> And the weary are at rest,
> There the prisoners rest together;
> They hear not the voice of the oppressor,
> The small and the great are there,
> And the servant is free from his master.

Sleep has been beautifully personified as the twin-brother or alter ego of death. The simile fails in the positive, conscious enjoyment of repose which is felt in sleep, but which we can scarcely conceive of as in death. There is this consciousness of rest in sleep in spite of the absence of our voluntary exercise of the bodily and mental faculties. There is more: there is the positive enjoyment of happiness as the soul ranges untrammeled through the realities of dreams, and slides down the backward groove of memory to the pleasures of childhood and youth, divested of all the annoyances that make their possession a questionable blessing at the time. To those whose maturer years project on the canvass of their life's history only the somber tints of trouble and sorrow, this dream retrospect is unspeakably cheering.

Again we wander through the pleasant paths and over the sunny fields of long ago, hand in hand with our favorite companions. Again we feel the soft hand of parental tenderness placed in caress or blessing on our heads—the hand that for years has been but senseless dust. We hear the voice of mingled reproof and affection which once awoke all the better feelings of our nature that are now hidden and panoplied by the indurated armor of selfishness. Again we experience the delicious, delirious agony of love, and behold the face of her once so blindly worshipped—an idol long since removed from its pedestal.

God, in our dreams, softens the frozen soul of our hearts and keeps alive the germs of human love, which, after all, are but emanations from His own great fountain of love. He graciously allows us to live over again the pleasures of youth, which we but half appreciated while we had possession, before harsh experience foreclosed the mortgage. Through the ivory gate of dreams streams forth to our tried conscience the life-giving rays of true happiness. How paltry our enjoyment of wide-awake consciousness compared with the delicious realities of sleep! Do not these visitations give us an earnest of what may be in the great hereafter? May we not, after having served our harsh earthly apprenticeship, grasp those youthful experiences that made our new life heaven? Better than merely human conjecture, may we not rely upon the promise of Holy Writ and appropriate the promise that we shall "renew our youth as the eagle," and look confidently forward to a real rejuvenation that shall restore our lost joys without their attendant annoyance?

For the future, dreams and sleep have a blessing for the weary. We look forward to the possibilities of the future. In dreams these possibilities become present realities. We hope, and hope puts on the character of reality; the wish becomes possession. Who shall say that dreams are not realities? that only trouble is real and joy a sham? Do we not repel the consciousness of the "glory that shall be revealed" by our attachment in our waking hours to that which is "of the earth earthy," and in stolidly rejecting the pleasure that in dreams come without our volition? Ought we to reject the imaginary happiness of sleep for the real troubles of our waking hours? Is it not real philosophy to accept the rest and pleasure rather than to embrace the toil and suffering?

If dreams are but illusions, the ignis fatui of the mind, surely they lead to nothing bad. Better enjoy what seems so real, than to encourage and invite what is so unpleasant and hard to bear. Those whose life is but a dream of splendor, a lolling in the arms of somnorific pleasure, live a life hardly so real as that of those whose days are weariness, but whose nights are glorious with dreamy realities. Those dream while awake and these realize when asleep. Let the poor, the wearied, the tormented, thank God that he has appropriated to them a portion of their lives as realizations of happiness, and believe that His providences are right and equal, which appropriate the day to the pleasure of one class and the night to the happiness of another.

La Claque.

Everybody has heard of la claque, the French institution for securing the systematic applause of every theatrical piece, good or bad. The claqueur is a gentleman who, for a pecuniary consideration, takes his seat in the pit, and claps his hands at every thing and every body he sees on the stage, from seven o'clock in the evening till midnight inclusively. If any individual among the paying portion of the public appears dissatisfied with the performance, and so far forgets himself as to hiss, it is the honorable mission of the claqueur to bawl "turn him out!" "hit him on the head!" and other amenities; and if there be any song or trade which seems particularly to jar on the nerves of the audience so as to excite shouts of "Oh!" and acute indications of suffering, the claqueurs never miss the opportunity of energetically demanding an "encore," in the hope, no doubt, that a second hearing of the piece may enable the malcontents to perceive its beauties.

The Pall Mall Gazette gives some interesting details of this noble institution. Up to 1820 it was usual for theatrical managers to covenant with a chef de claque (or leader of the claque orchestra) and give him so much a year, on the understanding that he should bring five and thirty or forty claqueurs to the house every night. One day, however, it was discovered that this arrangement was not at all a paying one. The only man who thrived under it was the chef de claque, who generally made his fortune at the end of a few years, and retired rich; while his employer, the manager, too often ended his career in the bankruptcy court. The chef de claque had several ways of making money out of his contract. Besides his fixed salary from the manager he received so much a year from those who had not much talent; and, in addition to this, he frequently sold at a high rate the forty seats which he received gratis. Nowadays all this is changed. Instead of the manager paying the chef de claque, it is the latter functionary who pays the manager. Three or four years ago, when a cabal was organized in the Quartier Latin against the Henriette Maréchal of the Brothers Concourt, the chef de claque of the Theatre Francois brought, on the second and third nights of the performances, five hundred claqueurs to the rescue. The uproar within the theatre was terrific; the claqueurs raved, and the students shrieked, but in the end it was the students who got the best of it. They had stronger lungs than the mercenaries, and after the third performance the piece was withdrawn. It is very curious to see a chef de claque in the act of recruiting his troupe. Within a few doors of every French theatre is a café where the chief claqueur establishes his headquarters. Toward five or six o'clock he puts in an appearance, and is immediately mobbed by the forty or fifty persons who are anxious to be enrolled for that evening. As a rule, the first thing the chef de claque looks at is the dress of the candidates. He accepts no blouses and no slovens. If he sees a man well arrayed, hearty looking and florid of countenance, endowed with good broad shoulders and fine big hands, he generally enlists him at once. The terms of admission to the claque vary. Sometimes (especially in summer) if there is a dull piece being performed, it is difficult to find claqueurs, and the chef presses every one he can get, accepting eight sous, six sous, and even as little as four sous from each of his troupe. Should the piece be so hopelessly dull or the weather so hot that no one will volunteer to pay even two pence, the chef must then have recourse to what ragamuffins he can find, and pay his troupe instead of being paid by them. When there is a popular piece, however, the chef de claque sometimes has several hundred candidates to choose from and on such occasions he can make his own terms. On the nights of a first performance of Angier, Sardou, or Alexander Dumas fils, the seats in the claque fetch five or ten francs apiece. If a row is expected, as at the revival of Ernani three years ago, and that of Lucrece Borgia last January, the places fetch quite fancy prices. In addition to the income he derives from selling seats at a profit, the contractor of the claque still makes a fine bonus by levying a tribute upon the actors and actresses. It is always easy for a spectator to guess which of the performers pay the claque and which does not. No matter how slight the part which an actor or actress has to play, he or she is sure to be warmly applauded if the chef de claque has been well paid. For a debutant to refuse payment would be folly almost amounting to artistic suicide. Some of the more popular dramatists, Alexander Dumas among them, have at different times endeavored to abolish the claque, at least so far as their own works are concerned; but the attempt has always failed. As in the days of Napoleon I. and under the Restoration, so now, the claque is in too good odor with the police to be easily superseded.

Eighty Lucky People.

From the New York Times.

Some time ago an article was published in the Times, stating that a number of persons living in Sandystone, New Jersey, and Port Jervis, New York, had fallen heirs to an estate in Scotland variously estimated at from twenty to thirty million dollars left to a William Innis. The person who gave the information to the "heirs" was a man named Smith, who makes it his business to look after and collect claims of this kind. The parties who were reputed to have fallen upon this streak of luck are mostly farmers, living in Sandystone, New Jersey; Bradford county, Pennsylvania, and two or three merchants and railroad men in Port Jervis, New York. Some of the heirs are in good circumstances, but most of them are poor, and when the news of their vast inheritance in the Old Country reached their ears they could not believe it was true, and for a time nothing was done and the matter was dropped. One of the party, however, wrote a letter to a prominent member of the House of Lords, England, making enquiries as to whether any such estate had been left. In the course of two or three months he received a letter stating that such an estate had been left to William Innis, and that if the heirs could prove their claims, there would be but little difficulty in getting the money.

Since then, Mr. William Kyte, one of the heirs, went to England and found that the statement of Smith, and also that contained in the letter, were true. He consulted while there with able counsel; who stated that "if the claimants could produce the old family Bible, with the records, it would be the best evidence as to their title." At this time, however, Mr. Kyte did not know that any such bible was in existence, and returned home to consult with other members of the family.

A Summer Session.

The chances are in favor of a summer session of Congress. Some idea of the work that is now before the Senate and the House may be obtained from the following figures: Of the 1,956 bills and 283 joint resolutions originating in the House during the present or Forty-first Congress, 400 bills and about 100 joint resolutions were introduced during the first session, and 1,536 bills and nearly two-thirds of the joint resolutions during the current session. Only 207 of these bills have passed the House and 100 have passed the Senate. Of the joint resolutions, 73 have passed. In the Senate 893 bills and 193 joint resolutions have been introduced, of which number 173 bills and 64 joint resolutions were introduced during the first, and 617 bills and 128 joint resolutions during the present session. In the Senate, 219 of these bills and 79 joint resolutions have passed, and in the House 58 bills and 40 joint resolutions. It thus appears that, of the aggregate of 2,849 bills and 475 joint resolutions introduced in both Houses up to this time during the Forty-first Congress, about 158 bills and 100 joint resolutions have gone through both Houses. A comparatively small number of measures have been rejected or indefinitely postponed. The rest are pending.

Organization of Colored Voters' Political Club.

The colored citizens of Meadville met Friday evening, May 6th, in the school house on North street for the purpose of organizing themselves into a political club, in order to discuss the passing events and political issues of the day. Mr. Lucas called the meeting to order and stated the object and necessity of such an organization.

The club was organized by electing Jacob Smith, President; S. L. Gardner, Vice President; A. W. Williams, Secretary. After the organization addresses were made by Messrs. Smith, Moore, Barney, Gardner and Williams.

After the transaction of preliminary business, and the adoption of the following resolutions, the meeting adjourned to meet in one week from that evening:

Whereas, In the course of human events through the Providence of Almighty God, the chains of oppression have been lifted from the necks of four millions of black men in the United States, thereby making the Declaration of Independence, a declaration that God has made of one blood all nations to dwell in her borders, who respect and obey her laws. And, whereas, the passage of the Fifteenth Amendment has become a law and thereby secured to the colored man the Elective Franchise, therefore,

Resolved, That we use this right to the best of our ability for the promotion of the happiness of man and for the perpetuity of the country.

Resolved, That we stand by the party which advocated the cause of Freedom as long as they carry out the principles inculcated in their platform.

Resolved, That we advise our brethren to organize themselves into political clubs for the purpose of being posted on the political issues of the day.

Resolved, That we advocate the use of the ballot for the promotion of honest men to offices of trust and responsibility.

Whereas, It has pleased God through the instrumentality of the American people to confer on us those political rights that have been so long withheld from us, therefore,

Resolved, That now more than ever should we be thankful to our Heavenly Father for putting it into the hearts of his people to do justice to the colored man.

Resolved, That we will ever remember the noble services of the members of the old Liberty Party, who, amid scorn and contumely, manfully stood up for our freedom.

Resolved, That we will always hold in grateful recollection the memory of Abraham Lincoln, the emancipator of our race.

Resolved, That in President Grant we recognize the noble soldier, upright citizen and devoted friend of humanity.

Resolved, That we will strive to encourage education and favor all the means necessary for the intellectual development of our people, as in this manner we hope to remove the prejudice that exists against us.

Resolved, That while we cherish no bitterness of feeling towards those who opposed the adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment, we consider it the duty of every colored man to give his support to the Republican party that has done so much for us a people.

The Security of Public Halls.

The artist of Harper's Weekly has faithfully illustrated in picture the scene of the interior of the Hall of Delegates, and the getting out of the dead and wounded, and all the horrors of that scene of horrors, and the editor, Mr. Curtis, has some seasonable remarks on the insecurity generally of the public halls of the country. As Mr. Curtis is one of the most popular lecturers of the day, and has probably appeared on all the platforms of the principal lyceums of city and village from Bangor to St. Paul, what he says is worth attention. And it will probably surprise many that Mr. Curtis indicts most of the halls in the country as being unsafe in construction and abominable in ventilation. Among the elements that make these places hazardous are their elevation to the height of two or three or four stories; single and narrow passages of entry and exit; stores, shops and saloons in connection with the same; Besides, there is a total absence of any official inspection of such public buildings with a view of testing their strength. Seating capacity and fancy decorations seem to be the first and last consideration, and ventilation, acoustic properties, the ability to stand any amount of weight or pressure, and passages so numerous and ample as to afford every facility for escape in case of fire and panic, are not matters that receive that attention from landlords that they deserve. Let the Legislature of every State, and the Council of every city adopt such laws and regulations respecting halls and places of public entertainment as shall afford every possible security and protection to the community, and forestall or prevent such calamities as a falling of a floor, roof or wall, or the bursting forth of a fire in any part of a building dedicated to exhibitions, might precipitate upon a crowded and unsuspecting mass of humanity. Mr. Curtis observes:

Public halls are not generally thought to be good investments of property, and they are therefore subordinated, to other rooms in a building. It would greatly increase the public sense of security and comfort if they were erected with chief reference to the easy escape of an audience. They need not be expensive. There is many a town meditating a hall to-day, which will not think of building, until it can put up "an ornament to the place" and that will be at a cost that will compel the building of stores under it to secure a fair return for the outlay. If the town would be but content with a simple, spacious room upon the ground floor, and be willing to allow the neat and fair proportions of the building to furnish the ornament, there would be a great many better, handsomer and safer halls in the country. It should be a principle upon which the public authorities should insist, that no place of great public assembly, like a hall, a theatre, a church, should be as hopeless of escape in great public emergencies as most of our great halls now are."

PARIS, May 11.

The troubles throughout the city last evening, were much more serious than anticipated, and the authorities were forced to make a large display of military power in order to restore order. Barricades were errected in the Belleville district and stubbornly defended by the rioters, though they were subsequently carried by the soldiers at the point of the bayonet, and several were killed and wounded on both sides. During the night other engagements occurred, in which a number of soldiers, policemen and citizens were killed. The Belleville district was occupied during the night by the military in great force and no persons were permitted to pass. The police made several charges upon the crowds of people which collected out of curiosity, and in some cases they used their swords and slung shots, whereby many were seriously wounded, mainly those who had nothing to do with the disorders. The police and rioters used firearms freely, but the troops made no general use of them. Once during the night a company of cavalry, assailed with a shower of stones, fired on their assailants, and this is the only instance known where the troops departed from the determination to use firearms only as a last resort. The workingmen were out in greater force than on any previous occasion. Perfect order was restored before daylight and there are no signs of trouble now, but the Government has not relaxed its precautions to guard against future disorder.

Washington News.

WASHINGTON, May 11.

General Pleasanton, Collector of the Thirty-second New York Revenue District, was at the Revenue Department yesterday and settled all his accounts as Collector of the Fourth District. The statement that he was engaged in settling Bailey's accounts is erroneous. He has nothing to do with them. Deputy Commissioner Williams has summed up the amount of defalcation of the absconding Bailey at $133,000, and it is said it will be settled by his sureties. This is by no means certain without a lawsuit.

The Postmaster General is authorized to contract with said companies for the transportation of United States mails once a week between the United States and Europe for ten years. The bill has not yet been considered by General Committee, but it is understood the sub-Committee favors a reduction of the sum allowed by the Senate Committee for increasing the service on the line between California and China from $500,000 to $350,000. They also favor granting a subsidy of $150,000 to establish a line from New Orleans to Vera Cruz and other Mexican ports.

PETROLEUM MARKET.

OFFICE OF THE MORNING HERALD, TITUSVILLE, May 11, 1870—5 P. M.

The market opened a trifle weaker this morning though yesterday's "bids" were sparingly made up to noon, when there was a decline in the feeling, and all offers of the morning were withdrawn, owing to a shade weaker feeling in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia markets. Upon the Lower creek $4.65 was offered during the forenoon, but after that time there were bids at $4.60 but without takers, sellers generally asking $4.70. Upon the Upper creek $4.60 was freely bid in the early part of the day, but towards the close $4.50 was the best price offered, holders asking $4.65@4.70. The outside markets were weak but quiet at the close, and the local market irregular and weak.

Before the Hon. S. S. Fisher, Commissioner of Patents—In the matter of Interference, Shaffner vs Mowbray, "Manufacturers of Nitro-Glycerine." An appeal having been taken by Mowbray from the decision of the Examiner in Chief, the Commissioner has now decided in favor of Mowbray as being the prior inventor.

Infringement Notice.—The subscriber has learned that a certain firm in Titusville, known as "Bryan, Dillingham & Co.," have commenced the manufacture of SUCKER RODS with SOCKET JOINTS. This is a DIRECT INFRINGEMENT ON HIS RIGHTS, as his claim is "connecting two sections of rod by means of wedges, wedging sockets, and double coupling bolt." He does not specify any particular shaped wedge, nor of what material it shall be made. All rods made as above described outside of his manufactory, are direct infringements.

This, therefore is to caution Oil Operators, and all others, against buying or using any rods so made, except those of his manufacture, as by so doing they will lay themselves liable, and will be dealt with according to law. WM. J. INNIS.

The Wear and Tear of Business Life.—The cares and labors of business life are apt to tell severely upon the health and constitution of the ardent, energetic business man, and when the need of some sustaining agent is felt, stimulants that cause only a temporary exhilaration, and leave the system in a state of partial collapse when their first effect has passed off, are too often resorted to. As certainly as fire leaves behind it a residuum of ashes, the use of the adulterated liquors of commerce produces premature exhaustion and decay. Touch them not. Tone and regulate the overtaxed vital machinery with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. In that wholesome elixir, the alcoholic element, which is the purest derivable from any source, is tempered by the choicest tonic, aperient, anti-bilious and anti-febrile vegetable extracts and juices. To strengthen, recruit, solace and purify the system is the mission of the great vegetable specific. When the stomach is in a healthy state, the bile flows regularly, the bowels perform their office properly, and the telegraphic fibres of the nervous system are in per ect working order, an enormous amount of labor can be borne without risk or inconvenience, and the direct effect of the Bitters is to promote this vigorous condition of the functions upon which the nourishment of the body, and its power of endurance mainly depend. The great tonic and alterative is, therefore, emphatically recommended for its remarkable strengthening properties, to all upon whom the responsibilities of life press heavily, and who feel like fainting under the burthen. A lively appetite, a splendid digestion, elastic spirits, and a marvellous ability to withstand fatigue, are among the blessings justly ascribed to the renovating operation of this palatable and powerful cordial, and, as a spring and summer alterative, there is nothing in the materia medica that can be compared with it.

PATENT STEEL JARS.

The undersigned hereby give notice to manufacturers and parties making, selling or using Drilling Jars made of wrought iron or steel combined, that by virtue of certain assignments duly recorded at the United States Patent Office, we own the sole and absolute right, title and interest in three patents for Drilling Jars; one granted to James C. Eastman, in July, 1867, and two to Edward Guiliod, in May, 1868; said patents covering all Jars made of wrought iron and steel combined, and applied substantially in the manner represented in said patents and generally known as steel jars.

Griffin's Patent
WATER PACKER!

This is one of the most useful Patents for Oil operators ever invented. It has several advantages over any other Seed Bag or water packer in use 1st. It can be put down quicker and is instantly ready for use as there is no waiting for seed to swell, and by its quick action the well is kept clean. 2d. It can never fasten tubing or casing in a well so that it cannot be taken out readily.

Every other Packer in Use has Fastened Strings of Tubing and Casing, so they cannot be Drawn From the Well.

3d. It is so constructed by means of a left hand screw thread that it can be loosened in a few minutes and removed from the well without difficulty. Even the caving in of the rock above the Packer will not prevent the casing being drawing out readily. It can be taken out and put back without repairs.

4th. This is the only Water Packer in use that has a Patent on, all others being an infringement upon the rights secured by letters Patent granted by the United States to Anson D. Griffin, August 13th, 1867. The Packer is now offered to the public at the low price of Twelve Dollars each, and the money will be refunded by us or our agents to all parties buying them where they do not give entire satisfaction.

THE VENTURE WELL.—In our report of this well on Tuesday we rated the production at 175 barrels per day. The decline on Saturday, when the measurement was taken, was owing to a split in the tubing, and as soon as repairs were made the production at once went back to the old figures, and the well continues to produce fully 275 barrels per day, as we are informed from a trustworthy source.

GARDNER & FOREPAUGH have lost several valuable attractions from their menagerie lately. Last week one of their lions died at Sharon, Pa., and at Cleveland the baby elephant, "Shoo Fly," packed up his trunk and quit the show business. His remains were bequeathed to the Western Reserve College. A Cleveland paper says: "His death was brought about by a tussle he had with the large elephant while in the Vermillion river. No one regrets his death more than his mate, who caused his death. It is pitying to look upon him. Tears are continually streaming from his eyes, and a low murmur of groaning is heard."

SQUATTER SOVEREIGNTY AT WEST HICKORY—A LIVELY SCRIMMAGE.—It appears that a dispute exists concerning the title to a portion of the Widow Fagundas farm, the scene of the new oil excitement on West Hickory. The farm was recently purchased by Fisher and Grandin, who are now in possession. But a portion of the tract on the line of Forest and Warren counties, is claimed by one McGee, a hotel keeper, at Tidioute, and other parties, who on Monday occupied their claim and commenced the erection of derricks. The Fisher and Grandin interest resolved not to be dispossessed without a struggle, and accordingly mustered a regiment of their employees and charged upon the intruders at "double quick." The skirmish was sharp, quick and decisive. There was a general knock down and some blood spilt, but the odds were in favor of the Fisher and Grandin party, and their opponents were driven off in riotous confusion. It was expected that hostilities would be resumed yesterday, but latest advices from the front state that both sides are waiting for reinforcements, and the Widow Facundas is casting Quaker guns.

HEARTH AND HOME at HOWE'S.

United States Circuit Court.

The May term of the United States Circuit Court opened Monday morning at Pittsburgh.

Hon. William McKennan was introduced to the members of the bar by Judge McCandless, and took his seat upon the bench for the first time in Pittsburgh since his appointment as Circuit Judge.

The Issue List was then called, and the causes ready noted for trial.

Decrees pro confesso were entered in some eighteen cases, in which E. A. L. Roberts, inventor of the oil well torpedo, was the complainant, and in which the respondent sought to obtain injunctions against parties infringing on his patent rights.

The case of Luther C. Cruser vs. the Kittanning Coal Co., et al., was continued by consent.

The cases of John C. Bryan vs. Fisher, Norris & Co., and J. C. Bryan et al. vs. same, in equity, were ordered to be heard at Williamsport.

Another Disastrous Oil Fire at Petroleum Center.

Through the courtesy of the Record we are enabled to place the following particulars of the fire upon the McCray farm yesterday before our readers.

About half past twelve o'clock Wednesday an oil tank containing about 500 barrels of oil, and located about half up McCray Hill, above the Hyde & Egbert farm, was struck by lightning and set on fire, resulting in a disastrous conflagration. The tank was a covered one and burned for about fifteen minutes before exploding, every one supposing it contained but little oil and that no particular damage would be done, in which it seems they were mistaken, the result being disastrous in the extreme. As soon as the tank exploded the burning oil ran down the hill taking everything in its course and only ceasing when its force was spent, despite the efforts of the bystanders to stay its progress.

The tank was connected with the Mt. Moriah well, McCray farm, and contained 500 barrels of oil, which was totally destroyed. Jointly owned by Jas. S. McCray and N. H. Payne.

Just below the tank was a small dwelling house, owned by Jas. S. McCray, which was destroyed.

Below this the following buildings and wells were destroyed:

Engine house of Burlington well.
Dwelling house owned and occupied by Mr. Stevens.
Office of Maple Shade Oil Co.
Engine house of Coquette well.
Dwelling houses of John Theobolt, Mr. Greenwell and Mr. Stantfard.

The house of Wm. Pugh was torn down in order to stay the progress of the flames, thereby saving several other dwelling houses.

From this point the burning oil ran into the ditch by the roadside, thence across the road towards Oil Creek, at which point a dam was constructed and its further progress stayed.

The loss is estimated at between $8,000 and $10,000.

"WANTED TO SEE THE SNAKES SQUIRM."—A representative from the rural districts, belonging to one of the original F. F. P.'s, and sometimes erroneously classed with the natural buckwheat production of his farm, came to town Tuesday to see the pomp and pageantry of Dr Thayers's grand entree and show. While listening to the seductive melody of a hand organ in the vicinity of the "big tent," he became suddenly imbued with the desire to witness the performances of the female snake charmer in a side show exhibiting near. He also yearned to heft the living skeleton, to ascertain if his light weight was genuine, and to fondle the bare-faced baboon, while the gentlemanly ape manager, with tears in his eyes, told of the trials and hardships of those whose business it is to pursue the ring tailed orang outang to his lair, and snatch him baldheaded for exhibition before the people of this great but ape-less country.

Investing the customary autograph of Spinner in a piece of card board he stepped into the tent. The parrots chattered, and monkeys winked, while the great African ostrich stood on one leg, regaling himself upon a frugal meal of horse shoes, and gravel hash. An oblong box stood near marked "Wrat-tail Snaix," but the gentle maiden who subdued these terrible "worms"—where was she?

Our friend "wanted to see the snakes charmed," that was what he came in for,—and the pictures outside represented this unterrified daughter of Mother Eve slinging the reptiles around with a spirit of devilry, that had our fore-mother exercised similar liveliness, might have made important changes in in our earthly welfare—and saved fruit. But the charming charmer was absent, and in loud tones the "man who didn't laugh" declared that if the "fishworms," "boy constructors" and "anacondas" were not then and there subjected to a manipulating process at the hands of the aforesaid female, he would permit the law to take its majestic course, and give the unhappy proprietor of the snakes a dose of legal vermifuge that would effectually cure him of the "worm business" in this vicinity. And he did it. A warrant was issued and the showman arrested for not "making 'em squirm" as announced on the bills. Legal talent was procured, and after due deliberation the "snakist" was acquitted on the ground that he was insane at the moment he sold the victim his ticket.

"Now all showmen a warning take,
With pole or clubs stir up your snake."

THE MCFARLAND trial is over and the prisoner is acquitted. The trial lasted a month; over one hundred witnesses were examined. The inevitable verdict was foreseen by the counsel called in the prosecution, and he retired from the case rather than lose reputation in a vain attempt to procure a conviction. The case, like that of Sickles and Cole, and many others, shows that public opinion is stronger than the law. The plea of insanity is oftly a convenient cover for juries. The plain English of the verdict is that no man can step in and put asunder man and wife under any circumstances. If he does so, it is at his peril, and he must bear the consequences of the husband's jealousy and rage.

We believe Richardson's motives were good and innocent at the start. He found Mrs. McFarland an interesting companion and he sought her society; he found her struggling bravely for a livelihood, and desired to aid her; he found her husband neglecting and abusing her, and he took her part. But he allowed the intimacy to go too far; his code of morals led him to believe that there was nothing wrong if he followed up the divorce, which he no doubt privately instigated, by marrying the woman. This was a proof indeed of mutual love, but it was an illicit affection, which finds no support in religion, and is incompatible with the peace or existence of civilized society. This is the lesson of the McFarland trial.

MAY.

"Then came fair May, the fayrest mayd on ground,
Deckt, with dainties of her season's pryde,
And throwing flowres out of her lap around.
Upon two brethren's shoulders she did ride,
The twisses of Leda; which on eyther side
Supported her lyke to their soversine quenne;
Lord! how all creatures laught when her they spide,
And leapt and dance't as they had ravished beene,
And Cupid's selfe about her fluttered, all in greene."

Canada Oil Letter.

PETROLIA, May 9, 1870.

Editors Morning Herald:

Since writing my last letter Mr. Blackburn of London has been fortunate enough to strike a good well on lot 6 in 12 con. Enniskillen, about three miles northwest of Petrolia. In the first instance it flowed the full of the conductor of pure oil. It was tested by pumping on Thursday last, and proves to be about a 30 barrel well. It is only 436 feet deep from the surface. It is thought by experienced oil men that its production could be doubled if the gas could be overcome. This, with the McDougal well (on same lot), shows that our northwestern territory is good, and it has caused quite an excitement here. Some 20 or 25 new wells are going down immediately there, and there are two or three already some 300 feet down.

The production for the last two weeks has not been large, but it is evidently increasing and can now be estimated at from 4,000 to 5,000 barrels for the week. The sales of oil for the last two weeks have been quite as much as the production authorized; in fact, the demand exceeds the supply, and crude has therefore risen in price. About 7,000 barrels have changed hands since my last at good figures, and mostly for London refiners. Our refining interest here must shortly be at a discount should no new developments be made, for at present it stands thus: Canada has a refining capacity of some 11,000 barrels per week, with a production of about 5,000 barrels, all told, so that when the tanked oil is all worked up, where will they be? Some of them are now turning their attention to the manufacturing of distillate for Englehart & Co.

The Standard here is fast getting ready for work, and I think its late disaster by fire, will prove a benefit to the works, as they are now removing the stills to some distance from all inflammable matter. The daily shipments of oil and its products from here, amounts to some twenty-three cars per day. I see that several old abandoned wells are being reconstructed, and in fact, the whole territory appears very lively with the increased stir made with the view of developments. Wells still further north-west are being drilled, and should they strike oil, there will be no telling the extent of our oil fields. All the export firms are busily engaged in manufacturing for the foreign market, and matters generally appear to look well. Several sales of territory have taken place lately, and speculation is rife even to the sales of dipping interests. This is done in the following manner. An owner of territory here may have a drain through his place; he then allows—for a third royalty—parties to put up dams across it and dip what refuse or leaked oil may escape to it. Some have been known to dip ten barrels per day. This oil is heavy and good for lubricating. Englehart & Co. are putting up several new stills in London, and will be ready for an increased business in a few days. Oil Springs is doing nothing worthy of note, ditto Bothwell. Crude, worth $1.35@$2 per barrel; Refined, dispatched, 22c@24c; In bond, 18c., including package.

STEAM ENGINES.—Messrs. Sprague & Longwell are advertising a very large and superior stock of steam engines, and particularly recommend Wright's graduating cut-off, as possessing greater strength and durability, and combining improvements that render it the most economical now in use. The attention of those interested is directed to the advertisement of the agents on another page, in which a brief but comprehensive description of the engine is presented, but buyers should not overlook the importance of calling at the warerooms and giving it a personal inspection. For cheap engines the same firm have the Washington Iron Works manufacture. In the closing up of the concern they were enabled to buy a large lot of these engines at exceedingly low prices, and now offer them to the public at proportionately low rates, warranting them to be of perfect workmanship and in every respect first-class. A large stock of W. C. Allison & Sons' tubing and casing will be found at the same place. Sprague & Longwell are opposite the passenger depot.

EXECUTION OF GEN. DE GOICOURIA.—On Saturday last the veteran chief of the Cuban revolutionists was executed by the garrotte, after having been summarily tried and found guilty by a court martial of his Spanish captors. De Goicouria was a native Cuban, and was connected with the old Lopez failure, as well as with General Walker's Nicaraguan expedition. When the Cubans rose in the present insurrection, Goicouria at once threw himself into the contest. He organized the Ryan expedition last summer, and was stopped by the authorities just as he was about to embark on the Catharine Whiting. He afterwards reached Cuba in a small schooner from Nassau. After a sojourn of a few weeks in the insurgent capital, President Cespedes commissioned him as minister to Mexico, and it was while attempting to escape from the coast on his new diplomatic mission that he was captured by the crew of one of the gunboats built in New York.

OPERATORS.—If you want GOOD rods, buy the "INNIS RODS" and have good rods, but do not be DECEIVED into buying sucker rods under the name of "GOOD" rods that are an infringement on the INNIS PATENT ROD.

RUSSIAN BRACES.—We have been asked whose likeness heads the advertisement of the above mentioned goods which appears in our columns. It is a correct portrait of "His Majesty Alexander II., Emperor and Autocrat of all the Russias," who, perhaps, more than any foreign monarch, has shown regard and expressed sympathy for this country. He is, one would think, a highly favored ruler, having immense power, vast dominions, an income of $48,000 (forty-eight thousand dollars) in gold per day, and yet, like Alexander the Great, the Czar Alexander II. has his days of depression of spirits. The cut is becoming so familiar from extensive advertising by Messrs. Fisk, Clark & Flagg, No. 58 White street, New York, that already their goods are a household word, and "Russian Braces," which are patented here, and in France and Great Britain, are likely to outrival the famous Guyot braces of former celebrity. They are sold by McFarland, Smith & Co., Titusville.

Gentlemen—Your letter requesting me to be a candidate in the Republican party for Congress, in this district, has been received.

In reply, permit me to say that although I feel myself unworthy of the trust which you confide in me, yet the urgency of your call, and its strength both as regards numbers and influence, constrains me to yield my consent.

Having confidence that in the coming political campaign, as in those which are past (whoever may be your standard bearer in this district) the principles of the Republican party will triumph, I am yours respectfully,

WM. J. GALBRAITH.

THE ELIAS HOWE

SEWING MACHINE.

Its merits are too well known the world over to need comment. We would just say that these Machines have lately been improved with special reference to Family Sewing, doing now a much greater range of work than any other Machine in market. They are now made of hardened steel, which makes them more durable than other machines. There is no machine sold that is its superior as hundreds that have purchased in Titusville and vicinity, in the last few months, can testify Sold in Titusville, only by
